Over the decades, Medicare has become a national treasure by providing healthcare coverage to older Americans. This year, we celebrate Medicare's 45th birthday.

Strengthening this system and expanding it to everyone through single-payer Medicare for All is one way to get our economy back on track. Dr. Margaret Flowers will tell us how. Dr. Flowers is a Maryland pediatrician with experience as a hospitalist at a rural hospital and in private practice. She is currently working as Congressional Fellow of Physicians for a National Health Program on single-payer health care reform.

This presentation is open to the public and is sponsored by Charlotte Health Care Professionals for Health Care Reform, the local chapter of Health Care for All North Carolina.

You are also invited to tune-in and call-in to “Charlotte Talks” on WFAE with Mike Collins 9 – 10am. The producers have indicated that they will “probably be interested” in having Dr. Flowers as their guest.
